BLUE CHIPS

By Chester Briner

Unlike "investing," trading is a comparatively short term venture. In trading, your objective is not only to gain a quick profit but to keep your capital turning over as profitably as possible.

In trading, there are several indicators to look for in selecting a stock. These are: 1) Anything likely to improve the near-term earnings outlook or market position of the stock, even though the improvement might be only temporary. 2) Prospects for increased dividends or of a resumption of dividends if the issue has been a non-payer. 3) Some development likely to aid the entire industry in which the stock is represented. 4) A "technical" recovery in a stock after it has had a long decline. 5) A "bullish" chart pattern for the stock. This would be reflected in a chart that shows a steady resistance to a decline below a certain point and then the beginning of a rise from that level.

Another chart indicator is a stock that shows progressively ascending tops and bottoms, a "breakaway gap" upward. A stock that shows a break through upward, penetrating a previous resistance point is another bullish sign on a chart.

These indicators should not be confused with those that apply to buying stocks for investment. As was stated in earlier columns, the decisions on buying must be guided by your objective. The decision on which stock to buy, after the objective has been decided, must be based on the appropriate yardsticks. Buying trading stocks for investment purposes can be disastrous. Buying investment stocks for trading purposes can be frustrating.

Another thing to remember when buying for trading: Never buy any stock unless you have a fairly good reason for expecting it to go up. Merely to buy some stock at random is to court disaster, and this applies even in a rampant bull market.

The Richard Burtons of El Toro (nee Karol Janiszewski) are expecting the birth of their first baby any day. Richard is in the Navy and has been stationed in Guam. He arrived in the U.S. the first of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Marks of Laguna Hills just came back from a visit with their son in Heidelberg, Germany. Enroute home they spent some time in Paris, France. Lee reports their trip was a most enjoyable one.

Dick Nutsch, Bob Adams, Bob Arp, Jess Fry, Bill Milland and that very busy man, the President of the Aliso Valley Homeowners Association, Chuck Waltman, deserve a big thanks from the Republic and Sunny Ray homes residents for their efforts in making it possible to plant 129 Indian Laurel trees in this area's parkways. Comments of the homeowners, "Beautiful!"

A school carnival is such a delightful fund raising event, such as Olivehood's recent carnival. It seemed everyone was enjoying themselves, including: parents, teachers, Principal Stuart L. Cunningham, Mrs. Fay Curry, PTA president, and especially, the costumed children.

Have you been to the Continental Bakery in Larwin Square, Tustin? The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Uwe Pahlen, are U.S. residents of eight months. He has previously been a baker for 15 years in Germany and Switzerland.

LETTERS to EDITOR

Dear Readers of the Rancho Reporter:

We believe you must like television if you care enough about it to want the very best reception modern electronic developments can make possible and so you became one of our subscribers to cable television.

Can you imagine how embarrassing it has been to us these past months not to be able to assure you of the high-quality reception we know is possible with cable television every day of the year? Our faces are red. Technical problems beyond our control have finally forced us to suspend our billing to you until we can assure you of that wonderful, sharp picture you are entitled to receive over not one—but twelve—channels.

Effective November 1, 1967, all costs to you are suspended until the signals are delivered as we would like them to be—and as you deserve them.

All the staff and management of Pacific Cable look forward to sharing a mutually satisfying relationship sometime in the near future. In the meantime, have a wonderful Thanksgiving. Sincerely yours,

PACIFIC CABLE SERVICE, INC.

John R. Frost
President

P.S. Be our guest. Stay hooked up. It is better than other reception and it is free. Continue to let us know your problems when they occur. We'll do our best to help you.

There will be a style show for Mission Viejo High on December 1, conducted by Margaret Pottenger of the Jabberwocky of Tustin.

Don O'Hearn's eighth grade science classes of the Irvine Elementary School were recently aboard the Fury II, the Orange County Marine Science Laboratory.

This cruise was to stimulate the students' interest in Oceanology.

Various types of professional instruments and equipment were used by the students.

The students thoroughly enjoyed their cruise and much knowledge was gained of the ocean's environment, said O'Hearn.

Ron Linsky of the Orange County Supt. of Schools office states: "The Orange County Floating Laboratory is provided for use of Orange County Schools through Federal Funds to Education."

It is expected 10,000 Orange County school children will take advantage of this wonderful experience this school year.

Plaza Pancakes Prepared For New MV Equipment

Aunt Jemima is warming up her griddles, expecting a large turnout at the upcoming Pancake breakfast sponsored by the Mission Viejo Boosters Club. In conjunction with the La Paz Plaza Merchants Association, the fund-raising breakfast will be held in the parking lot of the Plaza on Saturday, December 2 from 7:30 a.m. to 11:30.

A general meeting of the Mission Viejo Homeowners Assn. will be held tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Mission Viejo High School.

UCI & IBM - Evolution

Biologists are using computers as a time machine at the University of California, Irvine to demonstrate to students in a few minutes the effects of a thousand years of evolution.

A large class of beginning biology students uses a date-phone link with an IBM computer at UCLA to study the genetic effects of natural selection on 100 generations of a hypothetical animal-through 3,500 years of make-believe history.

The proceeds from the morning meal will be siphoned into a fund supporting the athletics of Mission Viejo High School with particular emphasis on new and better equipment.

Tickets for the "Aunt Jemima Fiesta" are available through Booster club members and all merchants in the La Paz Plaza. Any civic groups interested in helping sell tickets should contact Stan Johnson, 837-1659.

Bundles For Diablo Stars

The Mission Viejo Boosters Club is asking the assistance of all local citizens in another of its fund-raising projects.

On December 9, MV Booster Club members will be traveling through the streets of Capistrano Highlands, Laguna North and Mission Viejo in search of bundles of old newspapers that are merely forming a firetrap in the corner of the garage.

"Beginning at 9 a.m. trucks will be driving up and down the streets, looking behind trees and shrubs with visions of sports trophies to be awarded outstanding Mission Viejo High School athletes, while "on their merry way."

For answers to questions concerning types of bundles, types of old papers or what assistance can be rendered, contact Stan Johnson, 837-1659.

Japanese Dignitaries Approve Mission Viejo

A high-ranking Japanese government leader and one of Japan's largest home builders visited Mission Viejo last week and expressed keen interest in -- and enthusiastic approval of -- Orange County's rapidly maturing 11,000-acre new town. It was the only real estate development they were to visit in their three-day stay in Southern California.

The government leader was the Hon. Umekichi Nakamura, a member of the Japanese parliament who has held three high positions in the country, minister of construction, minister of education, and minister of justice. He described Mission Viejo as "a well considered development" and said its general plan is "beautiful."

The builder was Shikimi Kadota, president of Kakuei Construction Co., Ltd., Tokyo, one of Japan's largest construction firms with an annual output of 1,200 homes. Having seen a number of developments in the eastern United States earlier in his trip, he found Mission Viejo's Homes "much nicer, more moderate and tasty in decorative tone, very impressive."

Both men were impressed with a number of the interior features. Their greatest enthusiasm was generated by one-piece plastic bathtubs and shower stalls and by self-closing attachments to sliding glass doors.

Kodota estimated that a house such as the smallest of Mission

Viejo's La Paz Homes, the two-bedroom -and-den San Juan, selling for $21,995, would cost about $40,000 in Japan. His homes, priced at $7,000 to $10,000, and sold to business men and professional men, are only about one-third the size of the San Juan.

Serving as interpreter and tour guide for the two dignitaries was Shiro Saiga, a Japanese government counsel stationed in Los Angeles.

JAPANESE DELEGATION -- No interpreter was needed to translate the smiles of approval evidenced by these three distinguished Japanese visitors who inspected Mission Viejo last week. They are (l. to r.): Shikimi Kadota, president of Kakuei Construction Co., Ltd., Tokyo; the Hon. Umekichi Nakamura, member of the Japanese parliament; and Shiro Saiga, a Japanese government counsel stationed in Los Angeles.
